

ABSTRACT

Compositions and methods used for preventing mitochondrial component-based diseases are disclosed herein. In particular, heterocyclic compositions and methods that are directed toward protecting against changes in mitochondrial permeability transition that could result in cell death.